

Appendix G– Real Estate and Restaurant Signage

Section G-1 Real Estate Signs

1. Attached Wall Signs

2. Freestanding Signs (may be two-sided)

- Real Estate Agencies may choose one of the two methods shown above (attached wall or freestanding) to display information. The attached signs are permitted in addition to the signs currently allowed by the sign ordinance. The display area on freestanding signs is permitted only on freestanding signs that meet the current standards, not in addition to the signs otherwise permitted by the ordinance.
- If attached display cases cannot be separated by a door or window, they must be separated by a minimum of 6 inches.
- The sign casing must be a minimum of two (2) inches wide and be made of solid wood or wood-like materials. The colors of the display case must match the building materials. A glass or plastic enclosure is required to keep all materials inside the display case.

Section G-2 Restaurant Information/Message Board Signs

- Restaurants may have one (1), attached, information/message board sign to display menu items. The maximum size of the display case is three (3) square feet. The sign must be flush-mounted to the building wall.
- These signs are in addition to the signs currently allowed by the ordinance.
- The sign casing must be a minimum of two (2) inches wide and be made of solid wood or wood-like materials. The colors of the display case must match the building materials. A glass or plastic enclosure is required to keep all materials inside the display case.
